Title:

- 1- There is no title.

Main points:

- 1- There are several main points in the paper. For instance, the objective of the project is making Marymount students pay less on textbooks. Another main point is that the student wants to create an application named Book Exchange and this application will be used by students at the end or beginning of a semester to exchange books instead of paying large amount of money to bookstores.
- 2- I think the first main point, which is the objective of the project needs more support. It would have been better if the author had explained an estimate of how much each student would save if they use the application.
- 3- I think all main points contribute to the overall theme of the paper and no points should be eliminated.
- 4- I think the order of the main points is fine. I like that the author starts his/her paper by describing the issue that students usually have every semester.

Citations:

- 1- Yes, there are exactly 10 references.

- 2- The author talks about each reference at least once in the paper, but he/she did not cite them.
- 3- No, there is actually no in-text citation and the author did not use APA style in the references section.

Wording and Formatting:

- 1- I actually did not notice any technical jargon in the paper.
- 2- The paper is very clear and readable. Novices in the field will be able to understand what the paper talks about.
- 3- Yes, the paper is actually 12 pages and a half.
- 4- I would say yes. The sections and headings are appropriate.

Final Thoughts:

- 1- I think the thesis of this paper would be “My idea for the project is to create an application for students called Book Exchange. It will be used for students to exchange books throughout the semesters; to avoid the high priced books found in the bookstore”.
- 2- I would say yes. The author supported his thesis and explained how the application would work for students who want to save money.
- 3- I think the author mentioned everything he has to mention. I did not notice anything is missing in his/her paper.

- 4- I think the single most important thing in the paper is the very first sentence, which is “The objective of this project is to make it so that college students do not have to worry about spending hundreds of dollars on textbooks”.
